

Training

Our client is a major industry leading training provider.

They have an extensive team of in house trainers but also wanted people who could deliver training courses to the biggest names in the business from the view point of someone who had actually done it.

In particular they wanted us to deliver in house courses where all the delegates would have a common goal.

We have delivered a range of courses varying from basic technology awareness seminars to in depth technology courses to teach developers of the leading blue chip websites to build sensational websites.

Delegates have included staff from, for example, HMRC, BA, Barclaycard, NHS.....

Our client chose us, not only for our ability to develop and present quality training material, but also, we could deliver it in a way that a career trainer cannot.

In particular we can teach the delegates how to do it, rather than how we think you should do it, based on years of real hands on experience, rather than synthetic classroom teaching!