

Website Technology Reviews

A number of our clients engage us to ensure what they are doing on their websites is effective. Whether this be a review of their technology or an SEO (Search Engine Optimisation) review or tutorial, using our years of hands on experience we can give advice that really packs a punch.

We give an honest no holds barred resume of what we think and more importantly how we think it can be implemented.

We do not baffle you with jargon, we advise on how you can implement our ideas and where it is not appropriate for you to implement it yourself, we will give you enough information to allow you to manage the task effectively.

As well as looking at the obvious, we have the experience to look at the whole system.

Unlike our competitors we do not just talk about the obvious. We understand the technology behind the scenes and how the vast range of technologies interact.

We have saved clients a fortune by identifying bad practice, poor suppliers and potential failure points.

Are your suppliers giving you the advice you need or simply taking advantage of your ignorance? Many of the companies we work with have bright intelligent managers and directors who are excellent at what they do, but lack the skills and ability to manage a technical relationship. We simply allow these managers and directors to make informed decisions.
